“A Novel Idea ... Read Together”

“A Novel Idea” hits another milestone and we’re celebrating 15 years of reading and discussing amazing books together. This year’s selection, No One Can Pronounce My Name by Rakesh Satyal, explores issues of family, identity, grief, and loneliness through the lens of South Asian immigrants in Cleveland. Be a part of Oregon’s most successful community reading project by reading the book and attending one of the more than 28 programs, including the final author event on Sunday, May 6, at Bend High School. The event is free but tickets are required.

15 YEARS

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO a social networking site called Facebook launched, George W. Bush began his second term in the Oval Office, the Boston Red Sox won the World Series, and The River Why was selected as the first book for what would become Oregon's largest community read program: "A Novel Idea...Read Together."

"A Novel Idea" has taken our imaginations to distant lands and cultures, raised our voices in song and poetry, moved our feet and hands in dance and drumming, and bridged our hearts and minds towards deeper understanding and empathy. We have journeyed through Afghanistan, Mexico, Ghana, Mississippi, Alaska, New York City, and, most recently, India. We have studied America at its core from the land of dreams to staring down its blatant racism.

Together we have created beautiful art, food, and music in celebration of the books we read. We stood firm in agreement, and in disagreement, about how and what we drew from the words on the pages.

Gathered around one book we have created shared experiences that fostered community and deeper understanding. This has been the magic of "A Novel Idea" and we promise to continue to find books that push us in new directions and take us out of our own heads and into the hearts and minds of others. With great appreciation for 15 years of discovery and community, we thank you for your constant participation and continued support of "A Novel Idea."
